Teachers of Oyen Inspectorate Hold Successful First Annual Convention

Oratorical Contest for High School and Public School pupils, provided one of the features of the convention and brought out thirty-five contestants.

Convention at Chinook Next Year

Sixty-seven teachers of the Oyen Inspectorate registered at the first annual convention held under the auspices of the Oyen Teachers' Association in Oyen, on Thursday and Friday October 21 and 22.

Mr. George A. Morrison, reeve, welcomed the visiting teachers on behalf of the village. Suitable responses in turn made by Mr. Steele, of Chinook and Mrs. Clarke Fraser, of Holliston on behalf of town and rural teachers respectively.

Committees to handle resolutions, nominations and finances, were the appointed and a special committee was named to act in an advisory capacity in matters concerning an oratorical contest planned for the evening session.

A ten minute songbook lived in the assembly, the singing being led by "Bob" Nisbet, accompanied by Mrs. G. E. Dickson.

A brief talk on the aims and methods of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance delivered by Mr. Sinclair, of Ramsey School, Calgary, was well received.

A paper on Junior Art, the work of Mrs. A. C. Robinson, primary teacher of Oyen School, was read. Unfortunately, sickness prevented Mrs. Robinson presenting the "Chalk Talk" she had prepared. The paper, however, was well read by Miss Gladys Walker of Oyen. So well appreciated was the paper, that the convention passed a resolution authorizing the printing of sufficient copies to supply each school in the Inspectorate.

The afternoon session was held in the Oyen Theatre. Professor Ottewill, of the Extension Department of the University of Alberta, presented the authoring very much with his lecture or "Habit," much valuable information and not a little good advice being contained in his address.

Professor Ottewill was followed by Mrs. Clarke Fraser, who presented her ideas on "History in the Public School, Grades V. to VIII." A live discussion at the end of the period proved that the efforts made by Mrs. Fraser, has been well directed.

At 5 p.m. the teachers and a group of parents and pupils attended a banquet and oratorical contest, held in the United Church. The banquet, prepared by the Oyen Women's Institute, was served in a manner that would reflect credit in any metropolitan centre, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The contest consisted of the proposing of and oratorical contest, held in the United Church. The toast list, with the names of those making responses, was as follows:

1. "The Province of Alberta." Response by Lorne Proudfoot, M.L.A., Chinook.

2. "Our Educational Institutions." Response by Professor A. E. Ottewill, University of Alberta, and Mr. F. L. Aylesworth, B.A., Oyen.

3. "The Press." Response by Mr. C. L. Dunford, Oyen.

4. "Our Returned Men." Response by Dr. W. D. McPhail, Oyen, and Robert Nisbet, Oyen. (The latter being a song "Long Live the King").

5. "The Teachers." Response by Mrs. Clarke Fraser, Holliston.

6. "The Church." Response by Father C. Lynett and Rev. C. R. Corcoran, Oyen.

7. "Oyen." Response by Mr. G. A. Morrison, Oyen.

8. "The Ladies." Response by Mrs. C. S. Wright, Oyen.

Toasts numbered 1, 2, 3 and 4 were proposed by High School pupils; 5, 6, 7 and 8 by Public School Pupils. The original plan was to offer one prize each to the High School and Public School boys and girls. The contest, however, proved so popular, and assumed such proportions, that extra prizes were given, and since the number of girls was practically double the number of boys, the contest was decided to give second and third prizes to girls in both sections, and second prizes to boys in both sections.

Three of the first prizes were five dollar gold pieces, donated by Lorne Proudfoot, M.L.A., and G. O. Johnson, M.L.A., and Mr. S. A. Miller. The remaining first prize was a vest pocket Kodak, donated by Mr. G. A. Morrison. Second prizes were $2.00 bills; third prizes were $1.00 bills.

At the close of the contest, Professor Ottewill complimented the prize winners on the high order of work presented, at the same time pointing out a few faults and giving good advice to all after-dinner speakers.

The prize winners were as follows: Public School Girls—1st, Norma Hurley, age 16, grade 6, "The Ladies," 98 per cent; 2nd, Beatrice Hachman, age 12, grade 8, "The Church," 82 per cent; 3rd, Ina Anderson, age 16, grade 6, "The Teachers," 81 per cent.

Public School Boys—1st, Andrew Lees, age 11, grade 6, "The Teachers," 84 per cent; 2nd, Ronald Fraser, age 12, grade 7, "Oyen," 81 per cent.

High School Girls—1st, Olive Partridge, age 14, grade 11, "Our Returned Men," 84 per cent; 2nd, Beila Lees, age 15, grade 11, "Our Returned Men," 83 per cent; 3rd, Catherine Wright, age 15, grade 11, "The Press," 50 per cent.

High School Boys—1st, Eddie Braden, age 16, grade 10, "The Province of Alberta," 79 per cent; 2nd, Maynard O'Brien, age 16, grade 11, "Our Returned Men," 72 per cent.

After the banquet, a public lecture in "Evolution," illustrated by lantern slides, was presented by Professor Ottewill, in Oyen Theatre. This instructive and interesting lecture was highly appreciated, not only by the teachers, but by the public in general.

On Friday, the convention resumed its work in Oyen Theatre at 9 a.m., the first ten minutes being spent in singing a few old songs. Papers were presented as follows:

"High School Literature in Rural Schools," by Mr. W. Korkk, Oyen.

"Best Work as a Project," by Miss Sherry, Chinook.

"A Short Geography," by Mr. P. F. Tracy, B.A., Chinook.

"Who is the Good Teacher?" by Inspector F. L. Aylesworth, B.A., Oyen.

Mr. Sherry was unable to be present, but her valuable paper was able read by Mrs. Grimes, of Kirkwall (read). This paper was also endorsed printed for distribution among the teachers of the Inspectorate.

In the afternoon session, the teachers heard paper on "Fundamentals in Arithmetic," Grades VI, VII, and VIII," by Mr. T. Swindolhurst, Excel, and "A Start in Algebra," by Mr. W. L. Irvine, Oyen. A highly appreciated feature of the afternoon, and a very suitable concluding item, was an illustrated talk on "Different Types of Dairy Cattle," by Mr. R. C. Hallman, B.S.A., Acadia Valley.

A business period followed, during which resolutions were passed and nominations presented. The convention decided to meet next year at Chinook, the officers to be as follows: President, Mr. P. F. Tracy, B.A., Chinook; vice-president, Mr. W. Korkk, Oyen; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Steele, Chinook.

The teachers at the convention expressed their sincere appreciation of the attitude shown to them by the people of Oyen and left for their schools throughout the Inspectorate, feeling that they had thoroughly enjoyed their two days in town.

A dance in Oyen Theatre, under the management of the proprietor, proved very successful and kept the majority busy until train time.

The Planet Mars

Scientists Will Endeavor to Discover If Planet is Inhabited

Observations now are under way at the Greenwich Observatory which may definitely reveal or exclude the theory of human habitation on Mars. Not since 1828 has the planet been in a position so favorable for scientific study.

Although Mars is 8,000,000 miles further from the earth than it was two years ago, the fact that it will be visible 32 degrees higher in the sky, where the atmospheric handicap is thinner and consequently clearer, will make the observations far more accurate than at any time since the advent of modern astronomical methods.

For the next few months the astronomers will concentrate their attention on the so-called "Martian 'canals,'" about which the dispute over human habitation is centering. One school of scientific thought contends that three geometric lines on Mars possibly could be canals built to obtain water from the melting polar caps to irrigate an arid planet. Those who disagree with this theory declare that the "canals" are merely an optical illusion.

Not Considered Good Form to Use It For Private Letters
Protests at the humiliation of having trade advertisements stamped by the Post Office on our correspondence may reveal the days when postal communication of any kind was considered a little lacking in dignity. Miss Louise Courtney in her reminiscences says that "when the London two-penny post was first established it was not etiquette to make use of it for private letters. I remember my father's annoyance when a stout footman posted a letter to Sir Robert Peel instead of sending it by a groom. 'To send a letter to a man like Sir Robert by post,' he said. 'Invitations and their answers were always sent by hand.'—Manchester Guardian.

The fortunate people of Vienna are now able to enjoy the delights of sports on a peak 5,000 feet above sea level without little more than two hours of leaving their front doors.

Austria is, of course, the land of the Alps, and at holiday times the call of the mountains is strong among the city folk. The Rax Alps, a journey of 110 minutes from Vienna by train, has 140 paths to its summit worn by the feet of countless travellers.

The trouble is that the climb takes three hours in the ordinary way, but to get over this difficulty a suspension railway has been built up the mountain by which people will be able to ascend 3,500 feet in ten minutes.

Queen Marie Lavish With Tips
Everybody who works on the Levant has heard Queen Marie of Rumania will come again. Her largest tip was about $12,000. The lowest tip was $5. Several stewards got $50. One steward was given a gold watch, and several received diamond brooches.

The Queen gave $200 for the ship's sick fund and $500 for smokers for the whole crew.

The Generosity of a "Cop"

By C. W. Peterson

Accepting Prof. Irving Fisher's estimate of average value in the state of $3,000 for each productive citizen, we may logically conclude that it would appear to be a sound business to expand up to this amount upon the maintenance, education and training of the native-born child until it reaches the age of 17, or in order to avoid perpetrate for a falling birth rate, or to speed up settlement, upon propaganda and after effort to transplant in Canada an acceptable person of productive age from another country. Records show that since 1870 we have brought somewhat over 414,000 people to Canada at a direct cost to the government of 37 million dollars. Estimating the expenditure of the rail company, the cost of the immigrants, provisions and other expenses of the immigrants at an additional 45 million dollars, the aggregate cost would be $82 million dollars, or an average cost per head of less than $20. Has Canada ever spent money more advantageously? It is conceivable that any national immigration could possibly yield greater returns.

It is instructive to contemplate the situation of the immigrants in their cities, except to their own overseas possessions. No matter how fierce the economic pressure, how widespread unemployment and distress, no progressive nation deliberately promotes such a situation. It is a hope for the future that the immigrants, a keen appreciation of the potential value to the state of the vital asset, and nations will create a new length and incur the most fantastic expenditure on relief, to preserve this precious asset intact during periods of economic stress. The hope that the unemployed population being ultimately absorbed in industrial production is not in any sense a class problem. Every citizen, irrespective of occupation, has a direct financial interest in its effective solution. If every class of the community would intelligently study the effect of an increased purchasing population upon its own resources, it would speedily create a favorable mass opinion on this subject.

A Business Governor

Lord Willington Will Keep Office Lord Separate From Home Life
Lord Willington, the new governor-general of Canada, has announced that he will be at his office at the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa daily at eleven o'clock to transact official business.

The significance of this announcement lies in its novelty so far as the Ottawa precedent is concerned. Heretofore the governors used their up-town offices but little. They have been known to having official documents sent to Rideau Hall, the official residence. That practice entailed some of time and embarrassment when speed was a factor.

Lord Willington's departure from Scotland routine suggests that he proposes to have his business dealings in an office which many people regard as more ornamental than practical. There is nevertheless, quite a lot of general in connection with affairs of state. His signature to documents is essential. According to the press representative of the King, those who have business to transact with him will know where to find him. He does not believe in involving his home life in the details of his office. That is the way most efficient executives do things. It is a good sign.

The majority of the men were of course, only ally. Especially those who were obviously innocent men of affairs, and who amused Joanna with their common adoption of one phrase, "I wish my wife were like you, now!" Three in succession! One who could not to her that he was an attorney representing "some of the very best interests," another whose name was mangle in a story that competed with the one she had left, even Penultima, who had been both a diplomat and a statesman!

As he breathed his response to her buoyant and restless youth, Penultima indicated to her a pretty woman who probably was forty but looked thirty, and who seemed, in some intangible way, to be not very happy. Joanna saw that her eyes always followed her. She knew Joanna thought she would like Mr. Penultima. And she did like Mr. Penultima. She gave him an unexpected acknowledgment of his "If my wife were like you, now, I'd know how really to enjoy being in love!"

"Haven't you ever talked that over with anyone? Just for example, Mrs. Marks?"

Of course colored in his face immediately. But the girl in front of him was laughing up at him so brightly that he was helpless.

"Because there happens occasionally to meet me, too," he protested, "doesn't necessarily mean that we have confidences. Anyhow, can't you forget everyone else, for this minute you have given me?"

Joanna couldn't she told him and left him with a parting smile. A moment later she thought touched Mr. Penultima on the arm. "You won't mind, will you," she asked Penultima's wife, "if I say that I want to know you? You see," she led, "I have met Mr. Penultima, and he was good."

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

(Ottawa, Ontario).—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I was left so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I suffered from the most frantic with pains and suffering until I thought sure there could not be any help for me. I have been very nervous and I started a second time and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely. I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can take the life long. I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine, and have also used the Bananas-Wash."—Mrs. L. L. LARSEN, Box 10, Oshawa, Ontario.

Introduces New Sport

Diver Succeeds in Walking Five Miles Under Water

Just to show that "swimming the Phant Channel is not the only sport," Miss Everett, Norfolk diver, walked across the bottom of Hampton Roads, from Old Point Comfort, Virginia, to the Norfolk naval base, a distance of about five miles. He completed the unprecedented jump in two hours and forty minutes.

Except for weakness in the legs and a numb feeling in the head and shoulders, Everett appeared none the worse for his feat.

Seated in a huge diving suit with leaden shoe-anchors, and carrying eighty additional pounds of lead strapped around his body to hold himself down in heavy pressure depths, Everett ailed into the water at 10:49 a.m., and despite many obstacles, including an old ship anchor which he became entangled, forged ahead and completed his trip at 1:30 p.m. A launch with an air pump accompanied him.

"Now," she said softly, "you must tell me why you were going away without even coming up to me."

"Because, Jo," he answered, "I already have gone away from me. I have tried to see it differently, but that's the way it is. When I came here, tonight, I thought we would have our hours together—I didn't know it was to be an affair like this! And that I had planned for me to find you in the very midst of the sort of thing you like—that fits you so well."

Joanna looked at him with a quiet, steady gaze. The deep brown settled in his eyes.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A Kiss

"Then you don't like my happiness?" Joanna said. "You don't want me to have what my money has made possible for me?"

"I haven't said anything of that meaning," John declared. "I want nothing else in the world so much as that you should be happy, but I wish you could have with it something of real joy, something of the joy that comes from love, something that you can't find in anything that has come your way, I am afraid you will never know that sort of feeling. Perhaps it is at night when you sleep, when I am alone, when I think it would mean one thing to you: it would mean one thing to me. As it is often done, there love is the bargain, it has come between us."

"You mean that because of this we must give up—give up each other?" she said very quiet, and patient.

"What else can we do? How is there any room, or place for me? The little house, with a parlor and kitchen that we planned would hardly be serviceable to you now, would it?"

"But John, I don't think you that to do right away." She smiled a little. "Only we can make it larger, and with more of it than just a kitchen and bath—fountains and gardens, and balconies, and the stairways and panelled halls we used to joke about when we saw two little houses. We can have all those things now, John, that we laughed about. It will be just the house we planned, enlarged to fit my million. Will there be anything wrong about that?"

"I wanted to, Jo," he said simply, "particularly because it has been hard for me to tell you how sorry I am for the thing I thought you heard of the wonderful thing that happened to you. I should have known better, but I just couldn't believe, I would have come before tonight but you wouldn't let me, you know, and now, of course, I know why. I thought, when I saw you, and the people around you, that I would just go along. There will be no room for me, any more."

"You're going to send again," Joanna complained. "Won't you kiss me first. You haven't kissed me, John, for a long time now, days and days it seems. And I don't want to be so cold and lonely."

Perhaps he would have realized her, if he could. But there would be few indeed who could have, without the appeal of her, almost a child in her plaintive plea to be humored and fondled. John gathered her to him and held her. Her hands pressed against his breast—her old trick which sometimes had been a pretense.

Suddenly he put her away from him, and put away the arm she had hung over his shoulder. When she saw how white his face was the understanding why he was waiting, why he couldn't just then make words.

"Now," she said softly, "you must tell me why you were going away without even coming up to me."

"Because, Jo," he answered, "I already have gone away from me. I have tried to see it differently, but that's the way it is. Stories About Famous People

London Theatre Manager Has Entertaining Book of Reminiscences

In an entertaining book of reminiscences Sir Squire Bancroft, the London theatre-manager, tells a quantity of good anecdotes about famous people so his known.

One, which we think has been printed before is that which Browning, the poet, told him of Longfellow.

The two poets were once driving through the London streets in a hansom cab, when a heavy shower suddenly came on. Longfellow insisted upon thrusting the umbrella through the trap in the roof of the cab, so that the driver might protect himself from the rain—which he did. That is precisely what you might expect Longfellow to do—a kind-hearted generous gentleman if ever one lived.

Another comes George D. Matfor, the famous illustrator and author of "Fifty Years," who was always among when anyone called on de Marier instead of de Marier. He said once: "Fifteen will write to me as de Marier. I wish they would give the devil his due."

The third story is about Archdeacon Wilberforce, who was one of the earliest foes of the evolutionary hypothesis of Darwin. The Archdeacon was visiting Sir John Hare at his seaside house in Devonshire, and Hare was very fond of dogs and was hardly ever to be seen without one by him, asked him this question:

"Do you really believe Archdeacon in a heretic for our dogs?"

"Indeed I do," said Wilberforce. "Do you mean that I shall really see my dog again?" Hare persisted. "Undoubtedly—if you are good enough," was the response.

Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, despite its assurance of benefit, cost so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, for it has removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.

An Ancient Piano

One of First to Reach America Exhibited at Mississippi Fair

Though its strings have long since become corroded and from its keyboard resound horrible discords, a little piano, said to be one of the first two to reach the New World, will be a feature exhibit at the Mississippi State Fair.

The instrument is the property of City Commissioner R. M. Taylor, who secured from Mrs. Rosa Fisher, an old German of this city, in whose family it has been for generations. The family to the piano is said by Mrs. Fisher to be in Mount Vernon, home of George Washington. Visitors to Mount Vernon describe the pianos as identical.

It is of French make, about 15 inches thick, 25 inches wide and 60 inches long. There are 73 keys, connected in a variety of manner from the pianos of today.

We probably wouldn't feel flattered to know that the people who we think are fools think of us.

Scientist says goldfish do not sleep. Oh, well, they never go anywhere, so they can't get tired.

Blessed are they that mourn, for they will be comforted.—Matt. v. 4.

Oh, don't not they are blest alone. Whose lives a peaceful tenor keep; The Power who piles man has shown A blessing for the eyes that weep.

For God hath marked each sorrowing day, And numbered every secret tear; And heaven's long age of bliss shall pay.

For all His children suffer here, —William Cullen Bryant.

God washes the eyes by tears until they can behold the invisible land where tears shall come no more. O Love! O Attention! You are the guide that show us the way through the great airy space where our loved ones walked. God touches us, while yet our sorrow is in the follow on and find our dear ones in heaven.

—Henry Ward Beecher.

For all pains—Minard's Liniment.

"The mine-I love you!" ardently whispered the aged millionaire to the penniless young widow.

"Enough to die for me?" she asked coyly.—Judge.

No need to suffer with corns, or to pierce the risk of paring them. Remove them surely and painlessly with Holloway's Corn Remover.

Thirteen is always an unlucky number for some one, but it consists of twelve jays and a jule.

Select Bacon From Scott

The summer experiments in hog feeding at the experimental farm at Scott were recently closed and a shipment was made to a packing plant in Edmonton. There were 64 pure-bred Yorkshire hogs on feeding trials. Nineteen of the choice sows were held for breeding purposes, the greater number of which had previously been sold to farmers in the district and the remainder were held for use at the experimental farm.

Of the 35 which were shipped with a mixed car of stock there were two over weight for select bacon and eight below the required weight on account of being a little younger. The remaining 25 all graded "select" and the 10 per cent. premium amounted to $6.87 for the 25, or $2.47 per head extra profit realized by having the desired type.

There has been a market increase in the percentage of select bacon from hogs grown in Canada during the last five years and on account of the unlimited market for this type of hog the general hog market will be stabilized as the percentage of select bacon hogs increases.

Nipigon Moose Hunting

Canadian moose and deer hunting season are at hand, in Quebec from the first of September to the end of December and in Northern Ontario, north of the French and the Mattawa Rivers from October 25th to the 30th of November. The lure of the great sport is irresistible to hundreds of men in professional and business walks of life in Canada and the United States, and it has been estimated that the tourist department of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal that the movement of hunters will be greater this year than ever before. Ozark Ripley, a noted writer and experienced hunter, has put down briefly, but graphically, a few impressions of one of his hunting trips in the Nipigon country. He writes:

"I was impressed for the scenery which unfolded itself gradually before me. For years I had visited the Nipigon country, and never once felt that I had neglected any of its offerings until I saw things from another perspective. I was at Lake Helen by accident, after following the route pursued by a big moose which had for some reason browsed close to the Mission. Paul, my guide, and I, had followed the trail towards the south, through the abbreviated poplar and birch grown bottom lands and over significant altitudes. Paul declared it was a moose of immense size. The trail was growing and time and again I lost the faint trail of the moose. We followed the trail, again after a pause, over hills. The moose appeared to be in no hurry. Its steps were uniform and deliberate. At no time did Paul slacken his pace and we arrived at the junction of Lake Helen and Lake Folly. We dropped down a hill to the water's edge, Paul in advance of me. After peering for a moment through a thicket, I observed a dark brown object of immense proportions in what seemed at first a recumbent position.

"I got in bush and got round her," Paul whispered. "If I got round the other side of bull she scare; she come straight for you."
With this he disappeared into the thicket as silently as a wraith of smoke in the wind-charged air. How long I waited I do not know, my teeth began to chatter. It was a fall morning and cold. The bull moved, scattering danger. Perhaps I acted wrongly, but held on his shoulder and snap shot at him. Again I sighed and pulled the trigger sending another 270 into him. The bull fell dead with a splash. "I got him," I exclaimed to Paul in staccato breath when he appeared. "I got him."
"Then I beheld rebuke in the red man's eyes because I hadn't waited longer."
"Yas," Paul declared in guttural, "he was heavy enough to kill moose here, but it take a real hunter to kill him where it's easy to get him out."
